forming groups, will take part in the event." Each group will perform for eight to 10 minutes.

"The way the show is designed allows for a rapid movement from one performance space to another, almost in a kaleidoscopic manner. It's going to make for a highly entertaining evening," Lentzner said.

The show's finale, conducted by Lentzner, features composer Howard Hanson's "Song of Democracy" by Winthrop's combined choruses and band. The composition, based on a Walt Whitman poem, was originally commissioned for the centennial of the National Education Association in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the National Educators Conference. could do it over again, I would have my parents make me go to a college where the professors care about their students. I haven't regretted my decision to come to Winthrop for one minute," he said.

Silverman teaches a variety of classes at Winthrop. He specializes in certain areas, including the Civil War, the Old South, Afro-American history, and American ethnic history.

Silverman spent his early years in Alexandria, Va. He became interested in the history of the area where he lived. He chose to study more Southern history after experiencing several incidents at home, such as desegregation and the events that followed.

He has a bachelor's degree from the University of Virginia, a master's degree from Colorado State University, and a doctorate from the University of Kentucky.

Silverman was named the college's outstanding junior professor in 1985 and has published extensively. Also, college students have selected him for the Phi Kappa Phi teaching award for three of the past five years.

He lives in Rock Hill with his wife, Susan. She is an assistant professor and head of the reference department at Winthrop's Dacus Library.

Omni to host museum fair

As part of National Education Week, South Carolina teachers will gather at Charleston's Omni Hotel Saturday, Oct. 20 for an Education Resource Fair, a statewide event designed to give Palmetto State teachers a chance to learn about the many educational resources available to them at regional museums.

The fair, to which all South Carolina teachers have been invited, will provide opportunities for teachers to meet with representatives from museums in both Carolinas and Georgia, plus national museums such as the Smithsonian Institution, according to Linda McWhorter, education programs specialist for the South Carolina State Museum.

Many museums have programs which fit perfectly with what is being taught in South Carolina classrooms.

At the fair teachers can find just what programs may fit into the lessons they're teaching, says McWhorter.

Participating museums will have tables at the Omni for display of educational materials, museum brochures, instructional objects and other information.

"South Carolina teachers can have face-to-face contact with museum programmers to arrange visits or learn about available resources from a variety of institutions," says McWhorter.

The event will run from 10 am to 4:30 pm and is free of charge. It is being hosted by the State Museum in conjunction with the National Trust for Historic Preservation and the South Carolina Council for the Social Studies.

The fair is also open to the public and to attendees of the National Trust's annual meeting, which is being held in Charleston. For further info contact McWhorter at (803) 737-4999.

Alcohol Programs discuss choices

By Julie Tucker
Special to the Johnsonian

The Student Health and Wellness Program at Winthrop College will be sponsoring Alcohol Awareness Week and Red Ribbon Week Oct. 22-25.

Vicki Baroody, the coordinator of the program, has been working with other campus organizations to plan events for this week.

On Monday, Oct. 22, Public Safety will be sponsoring two videos on DUI, drinking under the influence and making responsible choices. The officers will discuss the DUI law in South Carolina and answer any questions.

York County Students Against Drunk Driving will sponsor a jamboree at Byrnes Auditorium 8 pm, Tuesday.

Ilene Stevens will tell her story about how she lost her son to alcohol poisoning. She will also talk about responsible choices and statistics. SADD chapters from all area high schools are invited to attend.

Alcohol Awareness Day, Wednesday Oct. 24, will be held in Dinkins Student Union lobby. Different campus organizations will set up display tables and hand out information to students.

Alpha Delta Pi sorority will hold its annual Mocktail Party, which is a non-alcoholic drink party in Thomson Cafeteria Wednesday.

Thursday the regular evening meal will be in McBryde Cafeteria with a disc jockey, 'non-alcoholic' bar, and dancing afterwards.

Red ribbons will be distributed throughout the week to remind students to drive safely.

October will also be Alcohol Awareness month for the resident hall assistants. RAs will be offering activities all month.

All events will be open to all Winthrop students with valid identification.

Communication

By Deirdra Stewart
Staff Writer

A small group of energetic, ambitious, and determined students along with an insightful professor who definitely saw some potential gathered in a small room in Johnson Hall to discuss the "far-off" possibility of Winthrop College Communication Club (WCCA) being transformed into a national society, the Society of Professional Journalists, also known as Sigma Delta Chi.

This past weekend at a conference in Louisville, Kentucky, WCCA obtained its goal and is now known as the Society of Professional Journalists. Vice President Dan Quayle was present at the Louisville conference along with other prestigious guests from the print and electronic media.

Dr. Larry Timbs, a professor in the mass communications department, is the advisor for Sigma Delta Chi. The organization will bring in speakers who will speak to students on important media issues.

The mass communications department has had a very busy week. Along with the announcement of The Society of Professional Journalists, the department also held its annual group counseling session for all communications majors.

At the meeting, Bonnie Jacobson, a counselor from the Placement Center, urged the students to attend Career Day on Tuesday, Oct. 16. She mentioned that companies from Atlanta, Charlotte, Florida and Rock Hill were looking for communications majors.

Jacobson also mentioned that a Placement file should be set up by students so that when prospective employers call for referrals, their resume' can be sent.

The department also has a new job referral system for seniors. Those interested fill out a form and when prospective employers call, the office will then have a list of names to give them.

Requirements, grade point average, advising and internships were the main areas covered in the meeting.

He came from Arizona

By Aleda Cotty

The opportunity to attend a four year college, to play Division I soccer and a full scholarship were enough to convince Eric Weikert to come to Winthrop College. Weikert came to Winthrop as a transfer student from Mesa Community Junior College in Mesa, Arizona.

Recruited by former soccer coach Frankie Griffen, Weikert played one year under Griffen and is in his second year under Coach Rich Pasipanko. "The soccer team," said Weikert, "has a lot of young players with talent, but we lack in experience and intensity a little bit."

Coach Pasipanko, says Weikert is turning the program around and doing a good job. "It looks good for them, I just wish I could be around longer."

Weikert has played soccer since the age of seven when a friend got him to switch from football. Weikert's friends and their fathers, who were the coaches, had the most influence on him.

In high school Weikert was the captain of the soccer team and an all-state player for three years.

Weikert, a business major with a marketing option, expects to graduate in December of 1991. His future plans are indefinite. "I have a contact in Arizona in telecommunications," he said. "I want to talk with him about something."

Weikert enjoys spending his free time socializing with his friends, playing outdoor volleyball, water sports and just being out in the sun.

Weikert says he doesn't know what would have happened had he stayed at Mesa Community College. He had considered the University of San Diego and UNLV, but chose Winthrop College. "I decided to go with the sure bet," said Weikert.

Bar 101 offers 'alternative nitelife'

Marietta Melton
Special to the Johnsonian

The music and the atmosphere of Rock Hill's new Bar 101 is giving Winthrop College students an "Alternative Nitelife," said Bar 101 manager Joe Mark Broadnax.

Bar 101, located at 1061 Camden Ave., has students lined up at the door, not only because it is new, but because it is so different from its competition.

Of Bar 101's 2000 members, 1500 attend Winthrop.

Broadnax said that students are attracted to the bar because it "has a new look and a new sound."

Broadnax described the music as "dance oriented rock."

"It's progressive slash modern," said Broadnax.

Students are also able to hear live bands every Wednesday night such as Hottie and the Blowfish, Dreams 30 Real, Local Color and Chairman of the Board.

Scott Butler, senior, mass communication major from Columbia, said he particularly liked the blend of music.

"Some places only play rap or hard rock. At 101 you don't have to worry about that. They offer us a variety," said Butler.

Bar 101 has large and updated facilities. Its 8,000 square feet gives it the capacity to hold a large amount of people. It also has two dance floors and two bars.

Butler said, "the space is the main reason that I go; there's lots of room."

Although many students are excited about Bar 101, they still attend the traditional college oriented bars, The Money and Scandals (both located on Cherry Road).

"Bar 101 has not had any dramatic affect on our business," said Gardner assistant manager of Scandals. He believes that students still appreciate the laid back atmosphere of Scandals and The Money.

"Students don't like to go to the same place all of the time," said Barry Murray, senior, physical education major from Perth, Scotland.

Broadnax also said that students can be expecting some future changes. The bottom bar will be expanded and there will be a patio added by Spring of 1991.

He said, "We will continue to try to cater to students and strengthen our fellowship with fraternal organizations. In fact, we plan on giving each organization a chance to sponsor an upcoming event."

With these added attractions, Broadnax said he hopes that Bar 101 will keep the students lined up at the door.

Memberships are available to students with Winthrop I.D. for $5, a $5 discount off the usual $10 fee. Memberships can be obtained at the door.

"I became a Macintosh convert in business school.

"At our computer lab I'd always find lines of people waiting to use the Macintosh computers, while other computers just sat there. So I had a choice: wait for a Macintosh, or come back at 6 A.M. to grab one before they'd all be taken.

"After business school, I took a job at a large bank and used my Macintosh for producing everything from spreadsheets to a company newsletter.

"Today I use Macintosh to help me run my own management consulting firm. When I give a presentation, I can see in people's faces that they're really impressed. And that makes me feel great.

"Sometimes I take Friday off, put my Macintosh and skis in the car, and head for the mountains. I ski days and work nights. It's perfect.

"You know, I can't say where I'll be in five, ten, or fifteen years, but I can say that my Macintosh will be there with me."

Second theatre production of season begins next week

By Mary Frances Monckton
Culture Editor

The Winthrop College Department of Theatre and Dance will present the second production of the season Wed.-Sat., Oct. 24-27, 1990, at 8 p.m. in Johnson Hall Theatre.

"The play's title is 'The Children's Hour,'" Director Blair Beasley said, "and it's essentially about a lie." The play takes place in a private girl's school. One of the students gets in trouble and starts a rumor that the two women who run the school are lovers. The girl's grandmother believes her and spreads the rumor to some of the other parents. "It is a very intense play," he said.

There are 16 cast members, 14 women and 2 men. "The play has an interesting set design, suggesting realism because the play takes place in two places, the school and the grandmother's home."

The play is by Lillian

Hellman, who also wrote "The Little Foxes" and "Another Part of the Forest."

"It is a serious piece. I think serious pieces allow for more growth for the actors and the director as well because of the material you are working with," Beasley said, "and it's even better if you can do it successfully."

"This is one of the most talented casts I've directed in a long time. Those playing the principle roles are highly experienced." He said the actresses were having an interesting time trying to remember what it was like when they were 13 and 14-years-old.

"Ellen Kennedy is going from a glamorous role in 'Crimes of the Heart' to playing a 60-year-old grandmother," Beasley said.

Beasley said he chose the play because the first performance had limited opportunities for students and it had a lot of women's roles. "I wanted to involve as many students as I could," he said it is also considered an American classic.

"Although the play was written in the 1930s, its subject matter is contemporary. The play was shocking in its day," he said. "Over the years it has been given a more sinister reputation than it deserves." People have heard the play is about lesbianism, but Beasley said that is wrong. It is about a lie and how destructive a lie can be.

"I think the richness of the characters and the importance of the thesis of the play are the two most important elements. It is an extremely well-written play. I think the audiences will be drawn to it."

Tickets will be available at Dinkins Student Center and the Johnson Hall Box Office Mon. Oct., 22-Sat., Oct. 27. Tickets are free for students with ID, $4 for faculty and general admission. "The Children's Hour" is an approved cultural event.

OPEN AUDITIONS...

October 16 and 17, 1990
3:30 to 6:30

Roles available:

"Holy Ghostly" - two males and three other roles (male or female)

"The Obsolete Man" - six possible roles

"The Zoo Story" - two males

"Waiting for Lefty" - eight males and three females

"The Tiger" - one male and one female

Auditions will be held in the lab theatre in Johnson Hall on the above audition dates.

New ticket policy in theatre department

By Mary Frances Monckton
Culture Editor

Some returning students may have noticed a change in the theatre department this year. Instead of reserving tickets for theatre productions, students are now picking up their tickets directly from Dinkins Student Center.

Marc Powers, production coordinator for all Winthrop theatre productions, said the department made the change so the students would not have to stand in line. Previously, students reserved tickets at Dinkins and then picked up the tickets at the theatre before the production. Powers added that students still need to come to the theatre five to ten minutes early.

If a student loses his ticket, he can come to the box office 15-20 minutes early and his ticket will be replaced.

Powers said the theatre seats about 340 people and there are always 200 tickets available at Dinkins. "We hope to fill the theatre all the time," he said.

Although student tickets are free with student ID, he added that students should not pick up a ticket if they are not going to use it. If it becomes a problem the department will have to revert back to the old procedure, he said.

Tickets will be available beginning the Monday of the week of the performance. "Student preview night, which is actually a final dress rehearsal, is open to all students," Powers said. "They do not need a ticket, just their ID." Seating on student preview night is on a first come first serve basis.

Thoughts: Senate election

Anne Hair, senior, did not vote in the Student Government Senate Elections on Sept. 19, 1990.

"I did not want to vote for someone I did not know because I did not know what they could do for SGA," said Hair.

Eva Klien, sophomore, said her reason for not voting was that she did not know who was running, what they stood for, or how they qualified for the position. Klien also said, "The line was too long in the cafeteria."

Lainie Feuerstein, sophomore, was one of the 11% who did vote in the elections. She said, "I know my vote will count because hardly anyone ever votes around here. The reason for this is because no one knows the candidates."

Kristin Kenny, sophomore, also voted on that Wednesday. She knew people running and felt that they needed her support. She said she felt her vote would make a difference.

Eighty-nine percent of Winthrop's students did not vote for the senators who will have the right to make guidelines and recommendations.

Why were the students so apathetic to the elections?

Christy Jackson, sophomore, said that she did not vote because she did not have enough knowledge about the elections. She said, "I did not see any flyers for people running for senate positions."

Feuerstein said that the elections were a popularity contest. "I think the senators should give speeches in front of Byrnes Auditorium."

Wes Wallace, junior and elections board member, said, "The Elections Board covered the campus with flyers advertising the elections."

OPEN LETTER TO THE WINTHROP COMMUNITY

We have learned in recent weeks that there is some confusion about the status of our business. Hopefully, this letter will clarify the situation and reassure our customers.

First of all, we have closed our retail shop. However, our screen printing operation, now known as "Pryor Sportswear," will continue to serve Rock Hill and Winthrop College as it has since 1983. We will continue to operate out of the same building, but in a different place. We have moved to a space downstairs. The entrance to this new space is at the back of the building.

The new occupant of our former location will be Sport Port. An article in The Herald gave the impression that Sport Port had taken over our screen printing business. This is not true. Sport Port and Pryor Sportswear are two entirely separate businesses.

Sport Port has advertised that they will offer screen printing. However, they do not actually do the printing themselves. They get actual screen printing companies to do their printing for them. Sport Port has approached us about printing for them, but no agreement has been made. If we do reach an agreement with Sport Port, it will be with the understanding that they will not be involved with our existing accounts. In other words, our customers will still deal directly with us.

In addition to this situation, there's been a rumor circulating that we are going out of business. This is not true. Our screen printing business has been healthy, and continues to be so. As far back as 1983, we've had to endure rumors that we were closing. Since we're still in business, those rumors were obviously false, as is the current one. In most cases, these rumors have been traced to competitors. Ironically, the competitor who was the chief source of these rumors recently went out of business.

Rest assured that if Pryor Sportswear ever decides to close, it will be on our terms and our customers will be notified by us. In the meantime, Pryor Sportswear will continue to offer the finest imprinted sportswear available to Rock Hill and Winthrop College.

Finally, although we are no longer in the retail business, our high school and college T-shirts will be available through The Top Spot in the Rock Hill Mall. These feature our original designs and will not be available in any other store. The designs available include Clemson, USC, Winthrop, Rock Hill, Northwestern, York, Clover, Fort Mill, Castle Heights, Sullivan and Rawlinson Road.

Sincerely,
PRYOR SPORTSWEAR

Safety First?

Although traffic inside the campus's gates will usually yield to pedestrians, traffic on Oakland Avenue is a different story.

"On campus, most cars will stop for people to cross the street, but not on Oakland," said Bill Culp, Winthrop assistant vice-president for Renovations and Special Projects.

Culp remembers when Oakland Avenue was nothing more than a dirt road, when it was rare to see more than two cars traveling down the street at the same time.

"I've crossed Oakland Avenue thousands of times and every day the traffic gets heavier and heavier," he said.

According to Aaron Grier, transportation planning intern for the city of Rock Hill, an average of 13,996 cars now travel down Oakland every day.

The heavy traffic poses a threat to students and staff, who are willing to risk running out into the street when they are in a hurry, said Culp.

While no pedestrians have been injured by not crossing at the crosswalk of Oakland and Eden Terrace, the danger of being hit is still there.

"The island that runs down the middle of the street cuts the hazard in half," said Culp. "Without it, pedestrians would be left standing in the middle of four lanes of traffic, waiting to cross."

Several solutions to the problem of pedestrian safety have been suggested in the past, including ideas such as building an overpass or underpass crossing Oakland.

"It's not a bad idea. But I don't think we could get students, faculty, and staff to use an overpass. If they don't want to take time to walk to a corner and cross at the light, why would they want to walk all the way to a bridge when they could just skoot across the street?"

Culp recalls a rainy day many years ago when one student threw a raincoat over her head, darted out into the street, and ran into a car.

"People want to find the shortest route. When they're in a hurry, they don't always consider their safety," he added.

The intersection at Eden Terrace and Oakland poses the biggest threat of all, said Margaret Jordan, director of Winthrop's public safety office. "That's a bad intersection. There have been more cars colliding there than any other place on campus."

"The problem could be eliminated if the light at the corner wasn't so long," Jordan added.

"People get irritated when they have to wait so long to make a right turn, because of the 'No Right on Red' signs. If we could get rid of those signs, the people waiting to turn right could go about their business down the road, and there would be fewer cars at the intersection when the light finally changed."

A City of Rock Hill survey on Friday, June 22 indicated that 869 vehicles had traveled through the intersection between noon and 1:00 pm that day.

Jordan said the Winthrop library staff petitioned the City of Rock Hill to remove the 'No Right on Red' signs several years ago, but received no response.

"Those signs are there for a purpose," said Officer Ted McKnight of the Rock Hill Police Department. "If those signs were removed, cars would be hitting students who are trying to cross."

In order for a sign to be changed or completely removed, a letter must be written to the Rock Hill Traffic Commission explaining the nature of the request. The sign's fate will then be discussed at the Traffic Commission's next meeting.

POLICE BEAT

Last year 15,618 people were convicted of driving under the influence in South Carolina. So far this year, 7,892 have been convicted or pleaded guilty to DUI charges.

Being charged with driving under the influence presents a myriad of problems for motorists, and the punishment is more than just a fine.

According to the state highway department, motorists who are charged with first-offense DUI:

Get booked, fingerprinted and jailed with other county lawbreakers.

Spend about $1,500 or more for SR-22 liability insurance because their insurance companies cancel their regular policies. For full coverage (liability plus collision) the fees would be about $3,500 or more.

Spend thousands of dollars to hire lawyers to defend them in court.

Face a $200 fine, plus $68 in court costs, or six months in jail.

Face 10 days of public service work in lieu of jail time.

Lose their driver's licenses for six months; 90 more days if they refuse to take Breathalyzer tests.

Pay $10 to get provisional driver's licenses, after taking the written test again.

Attend alcohol and other drug abuse and safety programs.

Pay $30 to get their regular licenses again.

Face the worry of what happens if they're caught again.

Seatbelt Law - pertaining to passengers

Section 56-5-6520 states that "the driver is charged with the responsibility of requiring each occupant over six and under seventeen years of age to wear a safety belt." The fine is $10.

Article 47, Chapter 5 of Title 56 provides for children under six years of age. They must be restrained properly in a safe car seat. The fine is $25.

SENATE REPORT

By Andrew Chandler

Well, yet another Senate meeting has come and gone. I encourage all Winthrop Students to come and observe the Senate meetings to make sure your senator is performing accordingly. Take part in the governmental process and let your voice be heard.

Now down to business. The October 15, 1990 meeting was called to order by Leigh Ann Satterfield, SGA Vice-President, at 8 pm. This meeting seemed to run much more smoothly and the senators seemed more organized.

The roll was called and the following senators were absent: Rafael Smith, Donald Parker, and John Dixon. Duane Morrison arrived late.

Cornetta Sires, read a poem which advised to say a kind word and warm greetings will be received.

Committees then gave their reports. Such topics as allocations, a charter bill, and the elections bulletin were discussed. Heather Hardin then read the minutes.

Each represented organization requesting allocations spoke first to give an explanation of their request for funding. Senate voted to give the Association of Ebonites $6535.78, WINHECON, the Home Economics club received $529.28, Circle K club received $1109.00, the Fashion club received $1355.06, Physical Fitness club received $2220.00, Women in Communications, Inc., received $147.50, Political Science club received $800.02, and the Student Health Advisory Council was sent back to committee for further discussion. The Economics club appealed the Senate decision to fund them $2917.20.

New business brought about the first reading of charter applications. SADD, Students Against Drunk Driving, promotes alcohol awareness and deals with alcohol related issues.

WCH, Winthrop Coalition for the Homeless, promotes awareness of the homeless problem in our community. The Society for Human Resource Management desires to acquaint students with human resource management.

All the organizations passed the first reading and are open to all Winthrop students.

Chris Rhodes, President of CGA, presented the budget for SGA to the Senate. SGA utilizes $10,500 for accomplishing its goals. He wants to improve relations with the Rock Hill Community and participate fully in community activities.

Congratulations to Melanie Coleman as a new senator for the South district. Don't forget the inauguration of Dr. DiGiorgio is October 18, 1990 at 11 a.m., said Satterfield to close the meeting.

Homecoming

Leaders ask students for ideas

The Council of Campus Leaders held their first meeting of the year on October 14. The council is made up of the ten major campus organizations. They are: Lynda Yacobi, President of Dinkins Student Union; Chris Rhodes, President of Student Government; DeBae Kennedy, President of Resident Student Association; Richard Ouzts, Chairperson of the Greek Council; Ann Bonett, President of the International Club; Tiffany Riddle, President of NAACP; Tracey Williams, President of the Association of Ebonites;

Patricia Kennedy, Editor of the Johnsonian; Barry Cubbedge, President of Student Alumni Council, and the Co-Chairs of the Eaglettes.

The hour-long brainstorming session focused on ideas and possible plans for Homecoming '91. Input from all Winthrop students is encouraged. A suggestion box will be placed on the counter of the information desk in Dinkins. Or members of the Council may be contacted directly. More exact ideas for Homecoming will be discussed at their next meeting (October 29).

Minorities set the PACE at Winthrop

By Kulcey Cassidy
Staff Writer

In today's society, now more than ever, academic success plays a key role in deciding the future of college graduates. Companies and organizations seek the best and the brightest to guide them into the 90's and beyond.

Winthrop College has numerous programs that honors academic achievements. One of those is the Program for Academic and Career Enhancement, better known as PACE.

The program recognizes the achievements of minority students, while preparing them to compete for advanced educational and professional opportunities. The program hopes through this type of nurturing, students will be encouraged to achieve the type of success they seek.

The PACE program consists of two parts, Pacers and Pre-Pacers. Pacers are those who achieve a grade-point average of 3.0 or better during the semester or cumulative. They are invited to participate in intellectual discussion groups during the semester and attend a graduate and professional workshop. At the end of the semester, they are honored with a recognition ceremony for their academic performance.

Pre-Pacers are students who achieve a semester or cumulative average between 2.5 to 2.99. Like Pacers, they are invited to attend discussions held throughout the semester, while also having the opportunity to attend graduate and professional workshops. In addition, Pre-Pacers are encouraged to continue their academic progress.

During his college days, Wilson spent two years travelling around the world.

One of the student speakers, Kristin Spinks, visited Taiwan last year. She had originally planned to visit China, but the Tiananmen Square Massacre put a wrinkle in her plans.

Spinks said that her visit to Taiwan was an unforgettable experience. Although it was a lot of fun, there was a great amount of studying to do.

Learning Chinese became a chore for her. "Studying a language in class over here is not the same as trying to learn it overseas," she said.

According to Kristin, one of the setbacks in travelling to a foreign land is the cost. "I'm deeply in debt."

Tuition overseas can cost up to twice as much as what a student at Winthrop pays; add another $500 or $600 just to get you there.

Like Kristin, Raquel Anderson believes that the only way to learn a foreign language is to go to a foreign country. "Don't kid yourself," she said, "the classroom is not where you learn it."

Raquel was 14 when she left her native Panama to study in California.

She had taken English for seven years but said that she "learned more English in 3 months" in America than she did in her home country.

If the cost of travelling to another country does not intimidate you, then the task of having to learn a different language probably will.

Some, more worldly Winthrop students, don't believe that would be a problem.

Noel Henry spent a month in Germany. She said that you did not have to be proficient in the German language in order to study there. "There were different levels of classes over there," she said. "You can get by."

Dr. Wilson encourages students to study overseas. He thinks that such an experience will be not only very enlightening, but will also "look super on a resume."

Although the cost is high, Dr. Wilson urges students to forget about finances.

"Don't worry about making money," he said. "Worry about that when you're fat and fifty."

Students give unique stage performance

Students from the School of Visual and Performing Arts at Winthrop College will present "A Celebration of the Arts" at 8:15 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 17, at Byrnes Auditorium.

The performance is part of the College's Inauguration Week festivities which end on Thursday, Oct. 18, with the induction of Anthony J. DiGiorgio as the college's ninth president.

The 80-minute show will feature student groups and ensembles performing a sequence of fast-paced music, theatre and dance numbers. The production takes place on the auditorium's main stage and two side stages built especially for the evening's performance.

"We have never had a production like this before. It's a unique and very ambitious project for us to pull together," said Bennett Lentzner, dean of the School of Visual and Performing Arts.

Inauguration Week Special events scheduled

Winthrop College will celebrate the Inauguration of its ninth president, Dr. Anthony DiGiorgio Oct. 14-18, Higher Education Week.

National Higher Education Week is an annual celebration, sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education (CASE), promoting the role colleges, universities and their graduates play in shaping our society.

Special events for National Education Week and Inauguration Week will include panel discussions, lectures, open houses, displays, receptions, luncheons, an historic slide show, a talent and hobby show, and a Celebration of the Arts gala.

The week will end with the Inauguration Thursday, Oct. 18 at 11 a.m. in Byrnes Auditorium. Expected guests include S.C. Governor Carroll Campbell, U.S.

Senator Strom Thurmond, U.S. Representative John Spratt, Lt. Governor Nick Theodore, Commissioner of Higher Education Fred Sheheen and Rock Hill Mayor Betty Jo Rhea.

The inauguration celebration is headed by the Inaugural Steering Committee, co-chaired by Dr. Jason Silverman, professor of history and chair of the academic council, and Rebecca McMillan, vice president for institutional advancement.

"The events planned for Inaugural Week will showcase Winthrop, its quality academic programs and its talented people," Silverman said. "This celebration will call attention to the accomplishments of the entire campus. It will emphasize the many opportunities for intellectual and personal development this college has to offer."

He said he hopes everyone in the area will take advantage of the many wonderful events.

McMillan said the week's events have something for everyone. "The entire campus community has come together to celebrate Winthrop's mission and the inauguration of Dr. DiGiorgio as its ninth president," she said.

"Everyone has contributed to this event with enthusiasm and a spirit of cooperation and commitment," McMillan said.

"This celebration will highlight Winthrop at its best," she said.

Governor honors Silverman

By Kim Learnard
Health Editor

Dr. Jason Silverman

Jason Silverman, Winthrop College history professor, has been named South Carolina's professor of the year. Governor Carroll Campbell made the announcement Friday in Columbia.

"This is the greatest honor I have ever received. I can think of nothing better than being named the South Carolina professor of the year. This award will only inspire me to do better in each class every year," Silverman said.

"I would like to thank all of my students. I couldn't have done it without them," he said.

He uses role playing to ask figures in history to join the class in question-and-answer sessions.

"If you make education enjoyable and exciting, people don't even know that they are learning. Entertainment is the key," Silverman said.

He said if he is having a bad day and he has been in meeting after meeting, walking in front of a class revives him. His classes are the high point of his day.

He values his relationships with his students. "I do cherish, have cherished, and will cherish them," Silverman said.

Thirty-eight-year-old Silverman has been teaching at Winthrop for the past six years. Before teaching at Winthrop, he taught at the University of Kentucky and at Yale University.

When asked why he chose Winthrop, he said he fell in love with the college and the area during his first visit.

He also fell in love with the whole idea of a college. "You are not just a number like at a university," he added.

Silverman said, "If I See WINNER pg. 15

Studying overseas

By Tom Geddens
Staff Writer

As a part of International Week, Winthrop students were given the chance to hear about studying in foreign countries from a more identifiable point of view, from fellow Winthrop students.

The program, entitled "Cultural Awareness", took place in the Dirkins Auditorium on October 9 at 3:30 p.m. The main emphasis of the program was to encourage students to travel to other countries.

The program was hosted by Dr. Melfred Wilson of the Political Science Department. Wilson told the audience that he was a seasoned traveller and that his "golden age" was spent overseas.
